OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

ON THE FIRST APPEARANCE OF

THE A B C RAILWAY GUIDE IN 1853.

"L'Ecriture dit quelque part: Celui qui consent à être A B C sera L E V; et l'Ecriture a raison, et les rationels auteurs du petit ouvrage qui présentent crânement les trois premières lettres de l'alphabet comme le titre de leur publication, ont raison; aussi ont-ils d'emblée par le fait de leur apparition porté le trouble dans l'âme des Bradshaws, de ces prétendus guides qui ne sont pas à toucher du doigt tant ils sont sales, et qui sont d'ailleurs tellement stupides qu'il est impossible au voyageur d'y trouver le renseignement qu'il cherche. Avec l'A B C c'est chose toute différente, un aveugle y trouverait son chemin. Il est impossible, selon nous, d'être plus clairement intelligible que ne l'est l'A B C. Il se peut que Bradshaw continue à être le plus vendu, la routine est une si belle chose! mais encore un peu de temps et l'A B C sera le vade mecum de tout homme intelligent à la recherche de ce qui, dans Bradshaw, est réellement l'inconnu, à la recherche d'une station quelconque..... de chemin de fer. Nous recommandons l'H A de l'A B C, urbi et orbi; il n'y a qu'un E B T qui puisse se refuser A O T de sa bourse un sixpence, à l'effet d'H T l'A B C; pour notre part, nous ne doutons pas que Bradshaw lui-même, avant l'E T, ne soit forcé de partager notre I D, et que, se trouvant D K V, il ne soupire sotto voce G V Q; à quoi nous ajouterons par forme de vœu antique: puisqu'il est F A C du nombre des vivants.....que la terre lui soit légère!"—Petites Affiches de Londres.

"The A B C, or Alphabetical Railway Guide, shows, as it is said, at a glance how and when you can go from London to the different stations in Great Britain, and return; together with the fares, distances, population, &c. We have carefully looked through this new railway time-table. The plan is admirable. The information is given to a person precisely as he wants it, and much useful information is given which cannot be found elsewhere. We have often been puzzled to find by ordinary time-table-books the information we want. The new book before us is as clear and simple as can be. If we want to go from London to any place in the country, we have only to turn to the name of that town, which, under an alphabetical arrangement, is readily found, and there we are plainly told the station in London from which we have to start, the times of all the trains leaving, when they arrive, and when they return; the fares; the population, &c."—Heropath's Journal.

"In the Guide before us the different railway stations are arranged in alphabetical order, on the plan of a dictionary; consequently the reference is actually 'as easy as A B C.' This railway directory is really a splendid hit, and must now supersede all in use. Its extreme facility for reference, accuracy, and trifling cost (6d.), will ensure for this Guide an immense circulation. It is to be published monthly."—The Lancet.

"The most formidable rival to 'Bradshaw' that we have yet seen. 'Bradshaw' gives the time-table of each Company in a tabular form: his 'Guide' is, in fact, a collection of the various companies' time-tables. The 'A B C Guide' throws these tables into Gazetteer form, which, of course, greatly simplifies the process of ascertaining the line, cost, and time of transit to or from the metropolis."—Christian Times.

"A very useful publication for those who are puzzled by the complicated time-tables of official lists. Every place to and from which a London train starts appears alphabetically, with the times of departure and arrival, the fare, and some statistics."—Spectator.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"We have been so puzzled this autumn with the complicated maturity of Bradshaw that we welcome with interest this new and admirable plan of showing at a glance the hours of departure and arrival of all the trains between London and other stations in Great Britain in alphabetical order. It will prove a most useful pocket companion to the traveller to and from London."—Literary Gazette, October 8, 1853.

"As a monthly Guide, this new 'A B C' one certainly is the easiest, and really most convenient in all respects, that has been offered to the public. For ladies particularly, Mr. Tweedie's little book will be found most acceptable. There is no fear of being half-an-hour plodding over the down trains instead of the up. One has but to look for the town we desire to travel to, and it is found in a moment. We wish the 'A B C' every success. It is cheap and very neatly got up, and a sixpennyworth nobody should be without."—Civil Service Gazette, 1853.

"The unintelligibility of 'Railway Guides,' and 'Railway Time Tables,' almost as difficult to understand as a problem in Euclid is to solve, has long been the complaint of travellers; and here we have the first attempt of which we are aware to give persons wanting to make excursions for business or pleasure the means of ascertaining, almost at a glance, the station from which, and the times when, the trains start for any given locality from London; and from that locality to the metropolis. The fares, and the distance of the various cities and towns from the stations are also given, with their population—a piece of information useful to some travellers on commercial speculations, in whose case it would not 'pay' to go to towns with an insignificant number of inhabitants. The towns to which passengers are conveyed from the different termini in London are arranged in alphabetical order, and the particulars we have named inserted after each. The routes of the different companies from the metropolis are given at the end of the Alphabetical Guide, of which every railway traveller should possess himself.—The labour of arranging and compiling this 'Guide' must have been immense; and only an enormous sale, at the low price fixed, can pay the publisher."—Naval and Military Gazette.

"INCOMPREHENSIBILITY has hitherto been the principle characteristic of railway guide-books, until to be as incomprehensible as one of these Pythian volumes has become a received interpretation of all that can be imagined of bewilderment, perplexity, and doubt. The compilers of the 'A B C Guide' have come forward to the assistance of the travelling public with a guide, showing at a glance how and when to go from London to the different stations in Great Britain and return. This is precisely the sort of information which the public require, and the compilers have done good service in supplying it. The old system of guide-books is defective in this respect—that, instead of making the point of destination the first thing to be found, it left the ignorant and perplexed traveller to search the tables of two or three companies before he could obtain the information he required, the index only giving him a clue to the principal towns along the line. In the 'A B C Guide,' the stations, and consequently the towns, can be found in alphabetical order. The reader can thus ascertain by what station he is to leave town, what number of miles he has to travel, at what period he will arrive at his destination (accidents excepted), and what is the fare he has to pay. Upon these points the anxiety of the reader is at once set at rest. He can go on his way rejoicing, assured that his course is as plain as A B C, and that he has nothing further to annoy him on this score. The routes of the different companies are given at the end of the book, and the traveller is supplied with requisite information in the smallest possible space. The book is compiled with considerable ingenuity, and the design is excellent."—Morning Post.

"Bradshaw meets a serious rival in The A B C, or Alphabetical Railway Guide, showing at a glance how and when you can go from London to the different stations in Great Britain and return; together with the fares, distances, population, &c. The towns are arranged alphabetically, and divided from each other with such distinctness, that the traveller lights upon the one he requires almost instantaneously. Underneath it he finds the times at which the trains leave London and arrive at the town, and the times at which they leave the town and arrive in London. By a beautifully simple contrivance, he gains at the same moment the fares of each class to the place treated of, the number of miles from London, and the population. At the end of the Guide, the routes of the different companies are given. The 'Guide' is to be published monthly, and will, no doubt, be still further improved before another issue. It promises to become a real blessing for railway travellers."—Weekly News and Chronicle.

HINTS TO RAILWAY TRAVELLERS.

Before proceeding on your journey, buy a copy of the A B C Railway Guide. There you will find that the Editor has already solved for you the mysteries of Railway complications, and has presented the information you require in a clear and concise form.

Your Luggage should be securely packed in a strong box, or solid portmanteau, and it is important that your name and address should appear in full on every article.

As almost every person is now an occasional traveller, it would be well for each to provide himself with a proper Travelling Equipage, with his name and address engraved on a plate permanently affixed thereto. These will be supplied at a small cost by any respectable Railway outfitter.

On Continental Railways the Passenger's Fare does not include the carriage of luggage, but a separate and additional charge is made for it. This custom has never prevailed in this country, but it has been the practice to calculate each fare so as to embrace an average quantity of luggage. The rule varies on different lines, but generally first-class passengers are allowed free 112 lbs. weight; second-class, 100 lbs.; and third-class, 56 lbs. All excess is liable to a heavy charge. If there be any reason to suspect that the weight of your luggage will exceed this scale, it would be best to forward the whole by Goods Train a day or two before the contemplated journey. An exception to this rule is sometimes made in favour of the samples of commercial gentlemen, but this exception is not uniformly admitted.

Avoid packing in Small Parcels, for they will prove a fruitful source of anxiety and trouble during the journey: have, indeed, as few packages as possible; and, after having seen that they are properly addressed, leave them in the charge of the Guard, who will deliver them to you at the termination of your journey. By no means thrust Bulky Packages under the seat of the carriage. Your property will not be any safer in your own custody than in that of the Guard, and, beside, in getting it in and out of the carriage, it will probably prove an inconvenience to your fellow-passengers. In the multiplicity of Railway affairs it may sometimes happen that, after all your precaution, your Luggage may be mis-sent. If this accident should occur, give notice of it immediately, and, for further safety, write on the first opportunity to

E. MORRISON, Esq.,
Railway Clearing-house, Euston Square, London.

This gentleman receives daily, from every first-class station in the kingdom, information of all missing luggage, and an application to him will generally afford a clue to the missing articles, unless they have been positively stolen.

Railway Companies do not hold themselves responsible for Luggage unless it be Booked; and Parcels of great value must be declared as such, and Insured, according to each Company's regulated charges. Neither are the Companies accountable for articles left in the carriages or "waiting-rooms," but such things are deposited in a room, and properly labelled, with the date, train, &c., upon which they are found. They are kept for a period of twelve months, when, if no claimant appears, they are advertised, and sold by auction, the proceeds going to the Company's general revenue.

For the better security of the property of passengers a "Cloak-room" is provided at the principal stations. Here articles may be left in charge of the Company's servant for a charge of 1*d.* or 2*d.* each; it is, therefore, wiser for passengers to avail themselves of this provision than to leave their property unprotected, and run the risk of its entire loss.

Be sure to be at the Station several minutes before the time for the departure of the train by which you propose to travel. Hurried excitement and bustle will throw you into a perspiration, which will be fatal to all comfort during your ride, and will expose you to the danger of catching cold.

Many travellers boast of their dexterity in catching the train at the last moment, but this habit displays a foolish vanity, and is attended with many risks. Be careful that the booking-clerk gives correct change and a proper ticket, as mistakes cannot be easily rectified after you have left the counter. Your ticket should afterwards be carefully preserved, for if it be lost you will be required to repay your entire fare. Should the ticket be afterwards found, or should other evidence satisfy the managers that you really did pay your fare at the proper time, the second fare will be returned, but this process of proof will subject you to much inconvenience and delay. To obviate this danger a Ticket-holder has been invented, which may be hung round the neck by a small ribbon, or may be attached to the button of the coat by an elastic cord. It may be had at the stall of every station for a few pence. Besides securing the ticket from danger, it is always within reach when passengers are summoned to answer to the peremptory call, "Tickets ready."

If you have the opportunity select a seat with the back to the motion: thus you will avoid an annoying and dangerous draught which always blows on the opposite side. But should these favourite seats be already occupied, do not persist in having all the windows closed. It will generally be enough to close that one on the side from which the wind blows. Fresh air is of greater importance even than the avoidance of draughts, and, indeed, a Railway-carriage full of passengers, and with all the windows closed, will soon be filled with vitiated air that is insufferable, and suggestive only of the Black Hole of Calcutta. An improvement in the construction of Railway-carriages, which would secure ample ventilation irrespective of the windows, has long been demanded, but has not yet been attained. It is true that in some modern carriages small ventilators have been introduced above the windows, but these are very imperfect, and beside, in unpardonable ignorance, they are often closed by a class of travellers who have an invincible repugnance to fresh air.

AND POWELL, 6, 7, 9 RAILWAY ARCADE, LONDON BRIDGE.
Rocking Horses, 21s., 30s., 42s., 63s., 84s. Perambulators, 25s., 42s. Double, 35s., 50s., 70s. Baby Jumpers, 10s. to 20s. Nursery Yachts, 36s., 42s., 50s.

To fortify yourself against cold and draughts a little attention to simple preparations is all that is required. A cap for gentlemen and a hood for ladies will sufficiently protect the face and neck. A rug will also add materially to comfort.

Smoking is strictly prohibited in Railway-carriages and at all Railway Stations. This is an excellent rule, and no gentleman of good breeding and of correct taste will ever attempt to infringe it. The fumes of tobacco soon fill the limited area of a carriage, add to the impurity of the air, already vitiated, and in many instances have caused persons to be seized with violent illness.

On no account whatever should passengers attempt to enter or to quit a carriage while it is in motion. Many sad accidents have resulted from this indiscretion, and therefore, by the bye-laws of every Railway Company, it is made an offence which very properly subjects the offender to a fine of 40*s*.

For the accommodation of Invalids who require to travel in a reclining position, Bed-carriages are provided on most of the trunk lines; but, as this is a special arrangement, it is necessary to give three days' notice to the General Manager, and he will direct a proper carriage to be in attendance at any station, and for any train indicated in the instructions conveyed to him.

For the convenience of passengers residing in the country and attending London, or large Provincial towns, daily-periodical Tickets are issued to First and Second-class passengers. These Tickets are not transferable, and any attempt to transfer them will render them liable to forfeiture. They are granted for Weekly, Monthly, Quarterly, Half-yearly, and Annual periods; are not available by Special or Express trains, though this privilege is sometimes accorded. They must be produced whenever required by the Ticket Collectors, and payment must be made in advance.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT and PILLS. Scarlet Fever, Diphtheria, Swollen Glands, Hoarseness. The first two diseases are at this time particularly prevalent; the mortality from which, according to the report of the Registrar General, is far above the average. Hoarseness, swollen glands, and sore throat invariably accompany weather in which the thermometer daily indicates a variation of thirty degrees. The danger from scarlatina and diphtheria is vastly increased by the present dense and impure state of the air. From the attacks of these ever-reigning diseases no precautions will preserve; but if the patient have Holloway's remedies at hand the assault will neither be long nor disastrous, for they check both fever and ulceration. THE

WEEKLY RECORD,

By the aid of first-class writers, furnishes leading articles on every aspect of the Temperance Reformation, and all topics of collateral interest. By the assistance of a complete and efficient staff of correspondents it collects the earliest and most authentic information from all parts of the world, and thus is enabled to present a valuable compendium of Temperance Intelligence. A special attraction has recently been added, at great expense, by the introduction of occasional spirited illustrations by GEORGE CRUIKSHANK and other popular artists.

The essential principle of personal abstinence, and the policy of judicious but uncompromising aggression on all the forces of intemperance, enlist the warmest advocacy of the WEEKLY RECORD.

Believing that the highest truths can be taught by fiction, the proprietor has secured the aid of the best writers, and at present chapters of a Tale appear every week from the pen of the accomplished author of 'Town Life,' entitled

HARRY BIRKETT,

OR,

The History of a Man who Helped Himself.

The object of the story is to show the privations and difficulties which beset the working man's life from youth to manhood, the temptations and snares to which youth is exposed, and how by industry, integrity, sobriety, and moral courage, all may be escaped and overcome; in short, such a picture of the condition of the people, painted by one of themselves, as will form an important contribution to the history of the working classes in the nineteenth century.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

ON THE FIRST APPEARANCE OF

"L'Ecriture dit quelque part: Celui qui consent à être A B C sera L E V; et l'Ecriture a raison, et les rationels auteurs du petit ouvrage qui présentent crânement les trois premières lettres de l'alphabet comme le titre de leur publication, ont raison; aussi ont-ils d'emblée par le fait de leur apparition porté le trouble dans l'âme des Bradshaws, de ces prétendus guides qui ne sont pas à toucher du doigt tant ils sont sales, et qui sont d'ailleurs tellement stupides qu'il est impossible au voyageur d'y trouver le renseignement qu'il cherche. Avec l'A B C c'est chose toute différente, un aveugle y trouverait son chemin. Il est impossible, selon nous, d'être plus clairement intelligible que ne l'est l'A B C. Il se peut que Bradshaw continue à être le plus vendu, la routine est une si belle chose! mais encore un peu de temps et l'A B C sera le vade mecum de tout homme intelligent à la recherche de ce qui, dans Bradshaw, est réellement l'inconnu, à la recherche d'une station quelconque..... de chemin de fer. Nous recommandons l'H A de l'A B C, urbi et orbi; il n'y a qu'un E B T qui puisse se refuser A Ô T de sa bourse un sixpence, à l'effet d'H T l'A B C; pour notre part, nous ne doutons pas que Bradshaw lui-même, avant l'E T, ne soit forcé de partager notre I D, et que, se trouvant D K V, il ne soupire sotto voce G V Q; à quoi nous ajouterons par forme de vœu antique: puisqu'il est F A C du nombre des vivants.....que la terre lui soit légère!"—Petites Affiches de Londres.

"The A B C, or Alphabetical Railway Guide, shows, as it is said, at a glance how and when you can go from London to the different stations in Great Britain, and return; together with the fares, distances, population, &c. We have carefully looked through this new railway time-table. The plan is admirable. The information is given to a person precisely as he wants it, and much useful information is given which cannot be found elsewhere. We have often been puzzled to find by ordinary time-table-books the information we want. The new book before us is as clear and simple as can be. If we want to go from London to any place in the country, we have only to turn to the name of that town, which, under an alphabetical arrangement, is readily found, and there we are plainly told the station in London from which we have to start, the times of all the trains leaving, when they arrive, and when they return; the fares; the population, &c."—Hereford Journal.

"In the Guide before us the different railway stations are arranged in alphabetical order, on the plan of a dictionary; consequently the reference is actually as easy as A B C.' This railway directory is really a splendid hit, and must now supersede all in use. Its extreme facility for reference, accuracy, and trifling cost (6*d.*), will ensure for this Guide an immense circulation. It is to be published monthly."—The Lancet.

"The most formidable rival to 'Bradshaw' that we have yet seen. 'Bradshaw' gives the time-table of each Company in a tabular form: his 'Guide' is, in fact, a collection of the various companies' time-tables. The 'A B C Guide' throws these tables into Gazetteer form, which, of course, greatly simplifies the process of ascertaining the line, cost, and time of transit to or from the metropolis."—Christian Times.

"A very useful publication for those who are puzzled by the complicated time-tables of official lists. Every place to and from which a London train starts appears alphabetically, with the times of departure and arrival, the fare, and some statistics."—Spectator.

"We have been so puzzled this autumn ith the complicated maturity of Brad-haw that we welcome with interest this ew and admirable plan of showing at a lance the hours of departure and arrival f all the trains between London and ther stations in Great Britain in alpha-etical order. It will prove a most use-il pocket companion to the traveller to nd from London." — Literary Gazette, ctober 8, 1853.

"As a monthly Guide, this new 'A B C' ne certainly is the easiest, and really ost convenient in all respects, that has een offered to the public. For ladies articularly, Mr. Tweedie's little book ill be found most acceptable. There is o fear of being half-an-hour plodding ver the down trains instead of the up. ne has but to look for the town we esire to travel to, and it is found in a oment. We wish the 'A B C' every uccess. It is cheap and very neatly got p, and a sixpennyworth nobody should e without."—Civil Service Gazette, 1853.

"The unintelligibility of 'Railway Guides,' and 'Railway Time Tables,' lmost as difficult to understand as a roblem in Euclid is to solve, has long een the complaint of travellers; and ere we have the first attempt of which ve are aware to give persons wanting to make excursions for business or pleasure he means of ascertaining, almost at a glance, the station from which, and the imes when, the trains start for any given ocality from London; and from that ocality to the metropolis. The fares, nd the distance of the various cities and owns from the stations are also given, vith their population—a piece of infor-nation useful to some travellers on com-nercial speculations, in whose case it would not 'pay' to go to towns with an nsignificant number of inhabitants. The owns to which passengers are conveyed rom the different termini in London are rranged in alphabetical order, and the articulars we have named inserted after ach. The routes of the different com-anies from the metropolis are given at he end of the Alphabetical Guide, of vhich every railway traveller should pos-ess himself.—The labour of arranging nd compiling this 'Guide' must have een immense; and only an enormous ale, at the low price fixed, can pay the ublisher."—Naval and Military Gazette.

"Incomprehensibility has hitherto been the principle characteristic of rail-way guide-books, until to be as incompre-hensible as one of these Pythian volumes has become a received interpretation of all that can be imagined of bewilderment, perplexity, and doubt. The compilers of the 'A B C Guide' have come forward to the assistance of the travelling public with a guide, showing at a glance how and when to go from London to the dif-ferent stations in Great Britain and return. This is precisely the sort of information which the public require, and the com-pilers have done good service in supplying it. The old system of guide-books is de-fective in this respect—that, instead of making the point of destination the first thing to be found, it left the ignorant and perplexed traveller to search the tables of two or three companies before he could obtain the information he required, the index only giving him a clue to the prin-cipal towns along the line. In the 'A B C Guide,' the stations, and consequently the towns, can be found in alphabetical order. The reader can thus ascertain by what station he is to leave town; what number of miles he has to travel, at what period he will arrive at his destination (accidents excepted), and what is the fare he has to pay. Upon these points the anxiety of the reader is at once set at rest. He can go on his way rejoicing, assured that his course is as plain as A B C, and that he has nothing further to annoy him on this score. The routes of the different com-panies are given at the end of the book, and the traveller is supplied with re-quisite information in the smallest pos-sible space. The book is compiled with considerable ingenuity, and the design is excellent."—Morning Post.

"Bradshaw meets a serious rival in The A B C, or Alphabetical Railway Guide, showing at a glance how and when you can go from London to the different sta-tions in Great Britain and return; together with the fares, distances, population, &c. The towns are arranged alphabetically, and divided from each other with such distinctness, that the traveller lights upon the one he requires almost instantaneously. Underneath it he finds the times at which the trains leave London and arrive at the town, and the times at which they leave the town and arrive in London. By a beautifully simple contrivance, he gains at the same moment the fares of each class to the place treated of, the number of miles from London, and the population. At the end of the Guide, the routes of the different companies are given. The 'Guide' is to be published monthly, and will, no doubt, be still further improved before another issue. It promises to be-come a real blessing for railway travel-lers."—Weekly News and Chronicle.

HINTS TO RAILWAY TRAVELLERS.

Before proceeding on your journey, buy a copy the A B C Railway Guide. There will find that the Editor has already solved you the mysteries of Railway complications, has presented the information you require in lear and concise form.

Your Luggage should be securely packed a strong box, or solid portmanteau, and it is portant that your name and address should pear in full on every article.

As almost every person is now an occasional veller, it would be well for each to provide him- f with a proper Travelling Equipage, th his name and address engraved on a plate mmently affixed thereto. These will be sup- ed at a small cost by any respectable Railway fitter.

In Continental Railways the Passenger's are does not include the carriage of luggage, t a separate and additional charge is made for This custom has never prevailed in this ntry, but it has been the practice to calculate h fare so as to embrace an average quantity of rage. The rule varies on different lines, but erally first-class passengers are allowed free lbs. weight; second-class, 100 lbs.; and third- ss, 56 lbs. All excess is liable to a heavy rge. If there be any reason to suspect that weight of your luggage will exceed this scale, would be best to forward the whole by Goods n a day or two before the contemplated rney. An exception to this rule is sometimes le in favour of the samples of commercial gen- men, but this exception is not uniformly ad- ted.

Avoid packing in Small Parcels, for they l prove a fruitful source of anxiety and trouble ng the journey: have, indeed, as few packages possible; and, after having seen that they are rly addressed, leave them in the charge of Guard, who will deliver them to you at the ination of your journey. By no means thrust alky Packages under the seat of the rge. Your property will not be any safer in r own custody than in that of the Guard, and, ble, in getting it in and out of the carriage, it l probably prove an inconvenience to your ow-passengers. In the multiplicity of Rail- y affairs it may sometimes happen that, after your precaution, your Luggage may mis-sent. If this accident should occur, e notice of it immediately, and, for further ty, write on the first opportunity to ailway Clearing-house, Euston Square, London.

s gentleman receives daily, from every first- s station in the kingdom, information of al sing luggage, and an application to him wil erally afford a clue to the missing articles. ss they have been positively stolen.

Railway Companies do not hold emselves responsible for Lug- ge unless it be Booked; and Parcels o t value must be declared as such, and In- l, according to each Company's regulated gs. Neither are the Companies accountable for articles left in the carriages or "waiting-rooms," but such things are deposited in a room, and properly labelled, with the date, train, &c., upon which they are found. They are kept for a period of twelve months, when, if no claimant appears, they are advertised, and sold by auction, the proceeds going to the Company's general revenue.

For the better security of the property of passengers a "Cloak-room" is provided at the principal stations. Here articles may be left in charge of the Company's servant for a charge of 1*d.* or 2*d.* each; it is, therefore, wiser for passengers to avail themselves of this provision than to leave their property unprotected, and run the risk of its entire loss.

Be sure to be at the Station several minutes before the time for the departure of the train by which you propose to travel. Hurried excitement and bustle will throw you into a perspiration, which will be fatal to all comfort during your ride, and will expose you to the danger of catching cold.

Many travellers boast of their dexterity in catching the train at the last moment, but this habit displays a foolish vanity, and is attended with many risks. Be careful that the booking-clerk gives correct change and a proper ticket, as mistakes cannot be easily rectified after you have left the counter. Your ticket should afterwards be carefully preserved, for if it be lost you will be required to repay your entire fare. Should the ticket be afterwards found, or should other evidence satisfy the managers that you really did pay your fare at the proper time, the second fare will be returned, but this process of proof will subject you to much inconvenience and delay. To obviate this danger a Ticket-holder has been invented, which may be hung round the neck by a small ribbon, or may be attached to the button of the coat by an elastic cord. It may be had at the stall of every station for a few pence. Besides securing the ticket from danger, it is always within reach when passengers are summoned to answer to the peremptory call, "Tickets ready."

If you have the opportunity select a seat with the back to the motion: thus you will avoid an annoying and dangerous draught which always blows on the opposite side. But should these favourite seats be already occupied, do not persist in having all the windows closed. It will generally be enough to close that one on the side from which the wind blows. Fresh air is of greater importance even than the avoidance of draughts, and, indeed, a Railway-carriage full of passengers, and with all the windows closed, will soon be filled with vitiated air that is insufferable, and suggestive only of the Black Hole of Calcutta. An improvement in the construction of Railway-carriages, which would secure ample ventilation irrespective of the windows, has long been demanded, but has not yet been attained. It is true that in some modern carriages small ventilators have been introduced above the windows, but these are very imperfect, and beside, in unpardonable ignorance, they are often closed by a class of travellers who have an invincible repugnance to fresh air.

Wedding Orders for Cards and Envelopes executed in the Newest Style by FREDERICK WILLIAMS, 19 CONDUIT STREET, PADDINGTON.—Orders by Post receive immediate attention.

To fortify yourself against cold and draughts a little attention to simple preparations is all that is required. A cap for gentlemen and a hood for ladies will sufficiently protect the face and neck. A rug will also add materially to comfort.

Smoking is strictly prohibited in Railway-carriages and at all Railway Stations. This is an excellent rule, and no gentleman of good breeding and of correct taste will ever attempt to infringe it. The fumes of tobacco soon fill the limited area of a carriage, add to the impurity of the air, already vitiated, and in many instances have caused persons to be seized with violent illness.

On no account whatever should passengers attempt to enter or to quit a carriage while it is in motion. Many sad accidents have resulted from this indiscretion, and therefore, by the bye-laws of every Railway Company, it is made an offence which very properly subjects the offender to a fine of 40*s*.

For the accommodation of Invalids who require to travel in a reclining position, Bed-carriages are provided on most of the trunk lines; but, as this is a special arrangement, it is necessary to give three days' notice to the General Manager, and he will direct a proper carriage to be in attendance at any station, and for any train indicated in the instructions conveyed to him.

For the convenience of passengers residing in the country and attending London, or large Provincial towns, daily-periodical Tickets are issued to First and Second-class passengers. These Tickets are not transferable, and any attempt to transfer them will render them liable to forfeiture. They are granted for Weekly, Monthly, Quarterly, Half-yearly, and Annual periods; are not available by Special or Express trains, though this privilege is sometimes accorded. They must be produced whenever required by the Train Collectors, and payment must be made in advance.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. —Prevention.—To cure disease is a laudable duty; but how much more noble is his object who can fortify the body against the coming pestilence! In Holloway's Medicines the purifying principle is sufficiently potent to expel from the blood and system the first subtle seeds of disordered action; and by their expulsion the calamity is averted, and health is made unassailable. Against diphtheria, fever, influenza, cholera, &c., Holloway's Preparations have displayed their prophylactic powers and elicited the gratitude of thousands whom they have saved from torturing disease. Almost all infectious complaints enter the lungs with the air during inspiration, and corrupt the blood, whence they are altogether dislodged with equal facility and certainty by these incomparable remedies. THE

WEEKLY RECORD,

By the aid of first-class writers, furnishes leading articles on every aspect of the Temperance Reformation, and all topics of collateral interest. By the assistance of a complete and efficient staff of correspondents it collects the earliest and most authentic information from all parts of the world, and thus is enabled to present a valuable compendium of Temperance Intelligence. A special attraction has recently been added, at great expense, by the introduction of occasional spirited illustrations by GEORGE CRUIKSHANK and other popular artists.

The essential principle of personal abstinence, and the policy of judicious but uncompromising aggression on all the forces of intemperance, enlist the warmest advocacy of the WEEKLY RECORD.

Believing that the highest truths can be taught by fiction, the proprietor has secured the aid of the best writers, and at present chapters of a Tale appear every week from the pen of the accomplished author of 'Town Life,' entitled,

HARRY BIRKETT,

OR,

The History of a Man who Helped Himself.

The object of the story is to show the privations and difficulties which beset the working man's life from youth to manhood, the temptations and snares to which youth is exposed, and how by industry, integrity, sobriety, and moral courage, all may be escaped and overcome; in short, such a picture of the condition of the people, painted by one of themselves, as will form an important contribution to the history of the working classes in the nineteenth century.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

ON THE FIRST APPEARANCE OF

"L'Ecriture dit quelque part: Celui qui consent à être A B C sera L E V; et l'Ecriture a raison, et les rationels auteurs du petit ouvrage qui présentent crânement les trois premières lettres de l'alphabet comme le titre de leur publication, ont raison; aussi ont-ils d'emblée par le fait de leur apparition porté le trouble dans l'âme des Bradshaws, de ces prétendus guides qui ne sont pas à toucher du doigt tant ils sont sales, et qui sont d'ailleurs tellement stupides qu'il est impossible au voyageur d'y trouver le renseignement qu'il cherche. Avec l'A B C c'est chose toute différente, un aveugle y trouverait son chemin. Il est impossible, selon nous, d'être plus clairement intelligible que ne l'est l'A B C. Il se peut que Bradshaw continue à être le plus vendu, la routine est une si belle chose! mais encore un peu de temps et l'A B C sera le vade mecum de tout homme intelligent à la recherche de ce qui, dans Bradshaw, est réellement l'inconnu, à la recherche d'une station quelconque..... de chemin de fer. Nous recommandons l'H A de l'A B C, urbi et orbi; il n'y a qu'un E B T qui puisse se refuser A O T de sa bourse un sixpence, à l'effet d'H T l'A B C; pour notre part, nous ne doutons pas que Bradshaw lui-même, avant l'E T, ne soit forcé de partager notre I D, et que, se trouvant D K V, il ne soupire sotto voce G V Q; à quoi nous ajouterons par forme de vœu antique: puisqu'il est F A C du nombre des vivants.....que la terre lui soit légère!"—Petites Affiches de Londres.

"The A B C, or Alphabetical Railway Guide, shows, as it is said, at a glance how and when you can go from London to the different stations in Great Britain, and return; together with the fares, distances, population, &c. We have carefully looked through this new railway time-table. The plan is admirable. The information is given to a person precisely as he wants, and much useful information is given which cannot be found elsewhere. We have often been puzzled to find by ordinary time-table-books the information we want. The new book before us is as clear and simple as can be. If we wish to go from London to any place in the country, we have only to turn to the map of that town, which, under an alphabetical arrangement, is readily found, and there we are plainly told the station in London from which we have to start, the times of all the trains leaving it, when they arrive, and when they return, the fares; the population, &c."—Hampshire Journal.

"In the Guide before us the different railway stations are arranged in alphabetical order, on the plan of a dictionary; consequently the reference is as simple and easy as A B C.' This railway directory is really a splendid hit, and must entirely supersede all in use. Its extreme facility for reference, accuracy, and trifling cost (6*d.*), will ensure for this Guide an immense circulation. It is to be published monthly."—The Lancet.

"The most formidable rival to 'Bradshaw' that we have yet seen. 'Bradshaw' gives the time-table of each Company in tabular form: his 'Guide' is, in fact, a collection of the various companies' time-tables. The 'A B C Guide' throws the time-tables into Gazetteer form, which, of course, greatly simplifies the process of ascertaining the line, cost, and time to transit to or from the metropolis."—Christian Times.

"A very useful publication for those who are puzzled by the complicated time-tables of official lists. Every place from which a London train starts arranged alphabetically, with the times of departure and arrival, the fare, and some statistics."—Spectator.

"We have been so puzzled this autumn with the complicated maturity of Bradshaw that we welcome with interest this new and admirable plan of showing at a glance the hours of departure and arrival of all the trains between London and other stations in Great Britain in alphabetical order. It will prove a most useful pocket companion to the traveller to and from London."—Literary Gazette, October 8, 1853.

"As a monthly Guide, this new 'A B C' we certainly is the easiest, and really most convenient in all respects, that has been offered to the public. For ladies particularly, Mr. Tweedie's little book will be found most acceptable. There is no fear of being half-an-hour plodding over the down trains instead of the up. One has but to look for the town we desire to travel to, and it is found in a moment. We wish the 'A B C' every success. It is cheap and very neatly got up, and a sixpennyworth nobody should be without."—Civil Service Gazette, 1853.

"The unintelligibility of 'Railway Guides,' and 'Railway Time Tables,' most as difficult to understand as a problem in Euclid is to solve, has long been the complaint of travellers; and here we have the first attempt of which we are aware to give persons wanting to take excursions for business or pleasure the means of ascertaining, almost at a glance, the station from which, and the times when, the trains start for any given locality from London; and from that locality to the metropolis. The fares, and the distance of the various cities and towns from the stations are also given, with their population—a piece of information useful to some travellers on commercial speculations, in whose case it would not 'pay' to go to towns with an insignificant number of inhabitants. The towns to which passengers are conveyed from the different termini in London are arranged in alphabetical order, and the particulars we have named inserted after each. The routes of the different companies from the metropolis are given at the end of the Alphabetical Guide, of which every railway traveller should possess himself.—The labour of arranging and compiling this 'Guide' must have been immense; and only an enormous sale, at the low price fixed, can pay the publisher."—Naval and Military Gazette.

"INCOMPREHENSIBILITY has hitherto been the principle characteristic of railway guide-books, until to be as incompresensible as one of these Pythian volumes has become a received interpretation of all that can be imagined of bewilderment, perplexity, and doubt. The compilers of the 'A B C Guide' have come forward to the assistance of the travelling public with a guide, showing at a glance how and when to go from London to the different stations in Great Britain and return. This is precisely the sort of information which the public require, and the compilers have done good service in supplying it. The old system of guide-books is defective in this respect—that, instead of making the point of destination the first thing to be found, it left the ignorant and perplexed traveller to search the tables of two or three companies before he could obtain the information he required, the index only giving him a clue to the principal towns along the line. In the 'A B C Guide,' the stations, and consequently the towns, can be found in alphabetical order. The reader can thus ascertain by what station he is to leave town, what number of miles he has to travel, at what period he will arrive at his destination (accidents excepted), and what is the fare he has to pay. Upon these points the anxiety of the reader is at once set at rest. He can go on his way rejoicing, assured that his course is as plain as A B C, and that he has nothing further to annoy him on this score. The routes of the different companies are given at the end of the book, and the traveller is supplied with requisite information in the smallest possible space. The book is compiled with considerable ingenuity, and the design is excellent."—Morning Post.

"Bradshaw meets a serious rival in The A B C, or Alphabetical Railway Guide, showing at a glance how and when you can go from London to the different stations in Great Britain and return; together with the fares, distances, population, &c. The towns are arranged alphabetically, and divided from each other with such distinctness, that the traveller lights upon the one he requires almost instantaneously. Underneath it he finds the times at which the trains leave London and arrive at the town, and the times at which they leave the town and arrive in London. By a beautifully simple contrivance, he gains at the same moment the fares of each class to the place treated of, the number of miles from London, and the population. At the end of the Guide, the routes of the different companies are given. The 'Guide' is to be published monthly, and will, no doubt, be still further improved before another issue. It promises to become a real blessing for railway travellers."—Weekly News and Chronicle.

HINTS TO RAILWAY TRAVELLERS.

Before proceeding on your journey, buy a copy of the A B C Railway Guide. There you will find that the Editor has already solved for you the mysteries of Railway complications, and has presented the information you require in clear and concise form.

Your Luggage should be securely packed in a strong box, or solid portmanteau, and it is important that your name and address should appear in full on every article.

As almost every person is now an occasional traveller, it would be well for each to provide himself with a proper Travelling Equipage, with his name and address engraved on a plate permanently affixed thereto. These will be supplied at a small cost by any respectable Railway outfitter.

On Continental Railways the Passenger's Fare does not include the carriage of luggage, but a separate and additional charge is made for it. This custom has never prevailed in this country, but it has been the practice to calculate each fare so as to embrace an average quantity of luggage. The rule varies on different lines, but generally first-class passengers are allowed free 112 lbs. weight; second-class, 100 lbs.; and third-class, 56 lbs. All excess is liable to a heavy charge. If there be any reason to suspect that the weight of your luggage will exceed this scale, it would be best to forward the whole by Goods Train a day or two before the contemplated journey. An exception to this rule is sometimes made in favour of the samples of commercial gentlemen, but this exception is not uniformly admitted.

Avoid packing in Small Parcels, for they will prove a fruitful source of anxiety and trouble during the journey: have, indeed, as few packages as possible; and, after having seen that they are properly addressed, leave them in the charge of the Guard, who will deliver them to you at the termination of your journey. By no means thrust Bulky Packages under the seat of the carriage. Your property will not be any safer in your own custody than in that of the Guard, and, beside, in getting it in and out of the carriage, it will probably prove an inconvenience to your fellow-passengers. In the multiplicity of Railway affairs it may sometimes happen that, after all your precaution, your Luggage may be mis-sent. If this accident should occur, give notice of it immediately, and, for further safety, write on the first opportunity to

K. MORRISON, Esq.,
Railway Clearing-house, Euston Square, London.

This gentleman receives daily, from every first-class station in the kingdom, information of all missing luggage, and an application to him will generally afford a clue to the missing articles, unless they have been positively stolen.

Railway Companies do not hold themselves responsible for Luggage unless it be Booked; and Parcels of great value must be declared as such, and Insured, according to each Company's regulated charges. Neither are the Companies accountable for articles left in the carriages or "waiting-rooms," but such things are deposited in a room, and properly labelled, with the date, train, &c., upon which they are found. They are kept for a period of twelve months, when, if no claimant appears, they are advertised, and sold by auction, the proceeds going to the Company's general revenue.

For the better security of the property of passengers a "Cloak-room" is provided at the principal stations. Here articles may be left in charge of the Company's servant for a charge of 1*d.* or 2*d.* each; it is, therefore, wiser for passengers to avail themselves of this provision than to leave their property unprotected, and run the risk of its entire loss.

Be sure to be at the Station several minutes before the time for the departure of the train by which you propose to travel. Hurried excitement and bustle will throw you into a perspiration, which will be fatal to all comfort during your ride, and will expose you to the danger of catching cold.

Many travellers boast of their dexterity in catching the train at the last moment, but this habit displays a foolish vanity, and is attended with many risks. Be careful that the booking-clerk gives correct change and a proper ticket, as mistakes cannot be easily rectified after you have left the counter. Your ticket should afterwards be carefully preserved, for if it be lost you will be required to repay your entire fare. Should the ticket be afterwards found, or should other evidence satisfy the managers that you really did pay your fare at the proper time, the second fare will be returned, but this process of proof will subject you to much inconvenience and delay. To obviate this danger a Ticket-holder has been invented, which may be hung round the neck by a small ribbon, or may be attached to the button of the coat by an elastic cord. It may be had at the stall of every station for a few pence. Besides securing the ticket from danger, it is always within reach when passengers are summoned to answer to the peremptory call, "Tickets ready."

If you have the opportunity select a seat with the back to the motion: thus you will avoid an annoying and dangerous draught which always blows on the opposite side. But should these favourite seats be already occupied, do not persist in having all the windows closed. It will generally be enough to close that one on the side from which the wind blows. Fresh air is of greater importance even than the avoidance of draughts, and, indeed, a Railway-carriage full of passengers, and with all the windows closed, will soon be filled with vitiated air that is insufferable, and suggestive only of the Black Hole of Calcutta. An improvement in the construction of Railway-carriages, which would secure ample ventilation irrespective of the windows, has long been demanded, but has not yet been attained. It is true that in some modern carriages small ventilators have been introduced above the windows, but these are very imperfect, and beside, in unpardonable ignorance, they are often closed by a class of travellers who have an invincible repugnance to fresh air.

Wedding Orders for Cards and Envelopes executed in the Newest Style by FREDERICK WILLIAMS, 19 CONDUIT STREET, PADDINGTON.—Orders by Post receive immediate attention. [237

To fortify yourself against cold and draughts a little attention to simple preparations is all that is required. A cap for gentlemen and a hood for ladies will sufficiently protect the face and neck. A rug will also add materially to comfort.

Smoking is strictly prohibited in Railway-carriages and at all Railway Stations. This is an excellent rule, and no gentleman of good breeding and of correct taste will ever attempt to infringe it. The fumes of tobacco soon fill the limited area of a carriage, add to the impurity of the air, already vitiated, and in many instances have caused persons to be seized with violent illness.

On no account whatever should passengers attempt to enter or to quit a carriage while it is in motion. Many sad accidents have resulted from this indiscretion, and therefore, by the bye-laws of every Railway Company, it is made an offence which very properly subjects the offender to a fine of 40*s*.

For the accommodation of Invalids who require to travel in a reclining position, Bed-carriages are provided on most of the trunk lines; but, as this is a special arrangement, it is necessary to give three days' notice to the General Manager, and he will direct a proper carriage to be in attendance at any station, and for any train indicated in the instructions conveyed to him.

For the convenience of passengers residing in the country and attending London, or large provincial towns, daily-periodical Tickets are issued to First and Second-class passengers. These Tickets are not transferable, and any attempt to transfer them will render them liable to forfeiture. They are granted for Weekly, Monthly, Quarterly, Half-yearly, and Annual periods, but not available by Special or Express trains; to this privilege is sometimes accorded. These must be produced whenever required by the Ticket Collectors, and payment must be made in advance.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—The LIVER, that large and important organ, which secretes bile, and transmits it to the gall-bladder and duodenum, is exposed to serious and sometimes fatal derangements. It is necessary, therefore, to watch carefully the first symptoms. A pain on the right side of the belly and on the top of the right shoulder, much uneasiness in lying on the left side, a dry cough, and difficulty of breathing, are among the diagnoses of sickness that the Liver is more or less affected. For all disorders of this vital organ Holloway's Pills are a specific. By checking the over supply of Bile, regulating its due secretion, and giving tone to the stomach, they effect a speedy and permanent cure. [272
